From the Pastor's Desk:

Next week, Msgr. Joseph DeGrosso, our new Pastor, will begin writing his Pastor's Column for our parish bulletin. This week, though he has been busy unpacking boxes and finding his way around the parish. He's barely found the "Pastor's Desk" never mind write a column from it.

This weekend, we will hear from Msgr. Joe at all of our parish's Masses as he introduces himself to our parish community and begins his priestly ministry here at the parish family of Our Lady of Perpetual Help.. Msgr. Joe brings much experience with him to this assignment. Having served as a professor and the Director of Liturgical Formation at the Seminary of the Immaculate Conception in Huntington, Msgr. Joe spent nine years in the work of formation of men for priesthood (including Fr. John!) and lay women and men for ministry in our Diocese. Prior to the that assignment, Msgr. Joe served as the Secretary to Bishop Murphy and as Associate Pastor at St. Kilian's in Farmingdale and St. Frances de Chantal in Wantagh. In addition to these assignments, Msgr. Joe has written numerous books and articles and speaks nationally about the liturgical life of our Church. He is also the host of Divine Intervention on Telecare.

Let's pray for Msgr. Joe and our entire parish family as we journey together in these times of transition!

Stewardship Reflection on Lectionary Readings:

July 1, 2012 – Thirteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Wis 1:13-15; 2:23-24; Ps 30:2, 4, 5-6, 11, 12, 13; 2 Cor 8:7, 9, 13-15; Mk 5:21-43

Today's readings call our attention to a topic most of us would like to ignore, but none of us can avoid: death.

The idea of spending any length of time contemplating death seems morbid. It is scary. And rightly so, for even the scriptures tell us that death is not of God.

"God did not make death, nor does He rejoice in the destruction of the living. For He fashioned all things that they might have being ..." (first reading).

Yet, today's readings highlight some of the wonderful aspects of the reality of death. While we recognize that God did not intend for us to die, nor does he delight in the death of any living thing, we are made aware of a remarkable reality — God brings good out of evil. In the case of death, he has brought unfathomable good out of something that entered the world by Satan's actions: "But by the envy of the devil, death entered the world..." (first reading); "The child is not dead but asleep..." (Gospel). It is in that which we rejoice. It is upon that which we contemplate.

God in His infinite goodness, through Christ's death and resurrection, made death — something that was brought about by sin and destruction — into something that serves as a point of departure for our complete glorification. Death is the beginning of our life in eternity, perfectly united to the Trinity. He sanctified death in a glorious way.

In the gospel today, we hear Christ encourage those mourning the death of the young girl. He assures them, "she is not dead. She is just asleep." and while this gospel reading culminates in the miracle of the girl's resurrection from the dead, "'Little girl I say to you, arise!' The girl, a child of twelve, arose immediately and walked around"; it speaks to us about the reality of death after Christ. It is not an end to life. We fall asleep as it were and awake refreshed in a life of glory.

Contemplating the subject of death, and the way in which Christ's death and resurrection has transformed the reality of our own, brings to light the purpose of our life here and now.

We are made for God. We are made to live in perfect unity with Him. We will not experience such perfect unity until we reach the eternal kingdom, because we live in a fallen world wrought with sin, and sin is not of God. Yet, in many ways, we are able to experience unity with Him — imperfect though it may be — here and now.

As we pray, we are united to the Lord. When we celebrate Mass together, and participate in all of the sacraments, we are mystically united to God in a very real very strong way. When we love and serve others in His name, we are united to Him. Through these and many other ways, we are closely bound to God here and now. He gives us strength and the grace we need to live a life of goodness, and He calls us to bear witness to the beauty of Christian living.

Indeed, in contemplating death, we see so many ways in which God has blessed us. We recognize his infinite goodness and his unconditional self-giving love, and we marvel at the gift He has given us in life everlasting.

Contemplating death ought not make us afraid. After all, Christ took the sting and the victory out of death (1 Cor. 15:55). He has won the victory, and He invites us to share it with Him in a life of eternal glory.

It is now our responsibility to live our lives for Him here and now so that we show Him our undying gratitude for all He has done for us and so that we show others the beauty in this life we call Christian discipleship.

As Christian Stewards in Today's World, We "Walk by Faith."

July 1, 2012 — 13th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Today's reading from St. Paul explains the "divine economy" of stewardship "The relief of others ought not to impoverish you; there should be a certain equality. Your plenty...should supply their need so their surplus may in turn one day supply your needs.

We are grateful this week for all stewards in our parish who ask themselves "what do I have to share that might meet someone else's need?"

WEEKLY OFFERTORY

Your Parish Finance Council has suggested that this simple bar graph be added to our weekly bulletin to illustrate the gap between the Sunday collection and the amount needed to achieve a balanced parish budget. Since the beginning of our fiscal year, September 1, 2011, we have experienced a weekly shortfall in collections. It is urgent that we begin to reverse this trend.

July 2012

Dear Brothers & Sisters in Christ,

Two weeks ago, our bunny died.

Her name was Gianni and she was with us for over ten years. She was named for my wife Beatrice's brother-in-law but by the time we found out that the rabbit was a "she" not a "he" the name stuck. We called her affectionately Giannina at times, as befitted her gender, but mostly still just Gianni. She had her own room where she could romp around at will even though that meant she chewed up the carpet that I had just laid down and chomped on the mouldings that I had just put in.

Since we don't have children she was special to us, especially to my wife. Beatrice fed her hand-washed Romaine lettuce twice a day and made sure to cuddle with her each night to let her know she was loved. When she got sick this last time, we took her to the vet as usual but she stayed for almost a week. They took good care of her but it was clear she didn't have much time left. She had a hard time moving around and wasn't eating normally. We brought her home on Friday. What a blessing to see her run around the room once more, though much more slowly, knowing that she was happy to be home! We tried to keep her comfortable and prayed that God would take her quickly without pain, if possible over the weekend. God hears us all when we pray. Sunday morning, she went to Him. We had time to cry and to bury her in the back yard with our dog Duncan and cat Calista.

Just days before this, I spoke at the last session of the parish's Life in the Spirit Seminar and included in my talk when Paul told the early church at Thessalonica to "Rejoice always. Pray without ceasing." (1 Thess 5:16-17). I told the seminar participants that if you have trouble remembering Bible verses, start with these. The first is only two words long and the second is only three. They're good to know. When we walked in the bunny's room that Sunday and found Gianni, Beatrice scooped her up in her arms and began to cry, stroking her precious baby gently. I held onto Beatrice and, as I did, those words came back to me. So we both began to praise God. "Thank you, Father. Thank you for being so good to us." Gianni had died at home over the weekend surrounded by those who loved her. God had answered our prayers. As sad as it was, we marveled in the goodness and tenderness of God in allowing us this time of grace. What a great Father he is!

I told Beatrice in the car on the way to church that afternoon that I had been asked to write an article for the bulletin. Immediately she said, "Tell everybody how good God is. Tell them how He always answers your prayers and how He'll never leave you. Tell them to praise Him always." He showed me that afternoon that, while it's natural to grieve and be sad, if you spend your time rejoicing in the Lord in all circumstances, even when it's tough, there's no room for despair in your heart.

Before this happened, Barbara Odin had asked me to write this column. Barbara and her husband Deacon Frank Odin run the OLPH Community of Praise Prayer Group (every Tuesday night at 7:45 in the Convent (see the bulletin) – all are welcome!). I said I'd do it not knowing what to write about but knowing that the Holy Spirit would make it clear. He always comes through. During this time of transition for our parish, let's praise God for the work of our out-going pastor Fr. Anthony Trapani and our priest Fr. Anselm Okeke and ask for many blessings for them in their new assignments. Let's also praise God for our new pastor, Msgr. Joseph DeGrocco, and our new priests, Fr. John Sureau, Fr. Ignace Lolecke, and Fr. Michael Holzmann and ask for many blessings for them in their new assignment here with us. As a matter of fact, let's be a blessing to them.

"Rejoice always. Pray without ceasing."

Gregory Guido
